Dear Hiring Manager,

I have delivered working applications utilizing HTML5, CSS3, Sass, JavaScript, jQuery, Bootstrap, React, and Redux. I am well versed in working with APIs such as Unsplash, Google, Youtube, Wikipedia, Disqus, etc., and I can utilize documentation with ease and clarity.

I can speak seven languages fluently, including English, French, Arabic, Persian, Turkish, Hindi, and Uzbek. I am currently teaching myself Spanish in addition to programming. I am thus fully aware of the value of clear and concise communication and possess a natural talent for learning new and difficult subjects. I am also passionate to pass on my knowledge to others since I believe that the best way to learn is to teach.

With over four years of experience working in an international travel technology company (Travelport Worldwide LLC.) in the role of solutions account manager, as the primary liaison between developers and clients, I am fully experienced working in corporate environments and have undergone training in a myriad of subjects such as compliance and ethics, cyber security, management, sales and marketing, working in teams, and software development processes.

I'm currently teaching myself back-end development and completing Harvard's CS50 in addition to Node.js and PHP.

I am comfortable working in stressful environments, have a strong work ethic and hold myself in high standards. I am dedicated to programming and take pleasure in tackling difficult problems with a positive attitude, as I believe that the primary role of a developer is, first and foremost, being an excellent problem solver and communicator. Being self-taught has therefore helped me achieve a high degree of independence in acquiring solutions to my sticking points while holding constructive criticism as an essential and valuable experience opportunity.

I, therefore, strongly believe that I am a valuable addition to your team and I am awaiting your call so that we can schedule an interview.

Sincerely,

Sayed Mahmood
